Additional premium domain name auctions are expected to take place throughout the year in various verticals, such as technology, healthcare, law, design and food.

“Our fashion industry is a key driver of job diversity and economic activity. These premium .nyc domain names will help local fashion firms leverage the city’s unique brand and strengthen our economy,” Deputy Mayor of Housing and Economic Development, Alicia Glen said.

“New York City is home to over 75 major fashion trade shows plus thousands of showrooms. The 'Made in NYC' community is at the forefront of how storefronts and online businesses are promoted to a global audience of fashion lovers,” said Sean Kaine, Vice President of Registry Solutions, Neustar.

.nyc was launched in October of 2014 with the support of an innovative group of early adopters and enthusiasts, including the First Lady of New York City Chirlane McCray, Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer and tens of thousands of local business owners, including Stateless, The Millinery Shop, Shop with Rox, and Laolu, among others. Today, .nyc has become the largest of all city-affiliated domains.

When asked what inspired Lynn Paik Millinery to establish her online presence at millineryshop.nyc, she said, “I wanted something informed that reflects the localization of my business and could roll off the tongue.”

According to Roxanne Hauldren of shopwithRox.nyc, “Your website is your brand. When you meet someone they ask what's your website. The building blocks of your business are online. When you come to NYC, I want you to think Rox, .nyc was a great opportunity to keep my brand identity associated with NYC, and top of mind.”
